

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing my comments about the weakening of Indiana's phone privacy law. I think that it is ridiculous for the CBA to petition for rights to call consumers any time they want. I don't understand why having a business relationship with these companies allows them to have the right to invade my privacy at home. I am outraged to say the least. I personally will cut any business ties I currently have with the CBA (and will encourage others to do the same) if this petition is successful. I don't interrupt the CBA's private family time and I don't appreciate them trying to interrupt mine. Please reconsider this petition.

Sincerely,
Beth Hilton
